help kids grow

Let's parent together

Talking Families is Queensland's go-to parenting community.

Let's navigate the ins and outs of parenting together.
By supporting each other we can learn, grow and have fun alongside our kids.

If your household ever needs an extra hand beyond your parenting community, visit www.oneplace.org.au and find support services available to help out Queenslanders.

The activities in this book are designed for households, families, parents and kids to do alone or together.

You'll find activities that suit different ages, seasons and moods.

Complete the activities in any order you like. Leave any activities you don't like. Repeat any you love. You might like to print the activities out, or re-draw them on some spare paper.

This book is for you and your household to enjoy and make your own.

WHAT FAMILY MEANS TO ME

Family looks different to everyone! Some of us have big families, some of us have small families. Some of us have pets, special friends or toys that are also family to us. We might have family overseas. We might have family who aren't alive anymore.

This activity is for you to celebrate your family and its strengths - whatever that looks like to you in this moment in time. Do this activity with your family, kids, parents or alone. It's up to you!

Draw the people (or animals) that make up your family in the space below

OUR FAMILY STRENGTHS

What are your family's strengths? Maybe you're all really good at welcoming new people, making each other laugh, or keeping each other motivated. Maybe you all have different strengths? Draw or write down your family's strengths below. Brainstorm and make a mess! You can also circle or scribble out any already listed.

Adventurous

Good at hugs

Loving

Brave

Good at cooking

Kind

Welcoming

PLACES TO GROW

What strengths do you and your family hope to grow in the future? Maybe you'd like to get better at meeting new people, or getting to know different cultures. Maybe you want to make each other laugh more, or make more time to relax. List or draw the strengths you and your family hope to grow in the future.

OUR FAMILY JOURNEY

This year has been a big one! What has your family grown and learned from? Maybe you've had special milestones, like birthdays, weddings or the birth of a new baby. Maybe you've lost someone special to you. Maybe you've made new friends, started a new school, or learned new ways to take care of each other. On the timeline below, mark down the key moments that have helped you and your family grow this year. You might like to do this activity with someone special, or someone you trust, so you can talk about this journey together.

SIX MONTHS AGO

TODAY

Think about what's ahead for you, for the rest of this year. How will you continue to learn and grow as a family?

THE FUTURE

creature comforts

Creature comforts are the things that make life more pleasant, enjoyable... and comfortable! What are the things in life that bring your household comfort? Maybe a favourite colour, a family tradition, a pet to cuddle, or a recipe that lifts you up or calms you down during harder times?

Write or draw your comforts on this page as a household. If you live alone, think about the animals, plants or pets around you too, the neighbours that are close by, or people who keep in touch. You might like to write or draw what you think brings them comfort too.

KEEP THIS ACTIVITY SOMEWHERE SAFE, SO YOU CAN REMEMBER EACH OTHERS' FAVOURITE COMFORTS.

celebrating creature comforts

Below is for you to draw moments that have brought you comfort this year. You can make a collage with photos, magazines, you might like to draw, paint, or write about them. Do this activity together as a household, or take a page each and then share your favourite “creature comfort” moments.

bringing extra comfort to our home

What's something your household can do this week to bring more comfort to each other? Write this down below or on some paper and pop it on the fridge as a reminder. It might be something simple like making everyone a cup of tea, taking half an hour to play a fun game together, talking about your day over dinner, playing your favourite songs each night, or calling someone at the end of each day.

OUR CREATURE COMFORT GOAL:

MAKE YOUR OWN

- 1) Find some paper as your base. You might even like to re-use an old cereal box
- 2) Cut-out fun images you see in old magazines, newspapers, or unwanted books and packaging
- 3) Arrange your images into a collage

Remember - the more images you have, the more challenging your eye-spy will be!

- 4) Glue your images in place

Share your masterpiece with a parent or friend so they can play eye-spy with their kids, and invite them to make one for your family.

You can also email your eye-spy collage to talkingfamilies@qfcc.qld.gov.au and we'll share it with parents for you!

Made to move!

Bust a Mood!

We all know exercise has many health benefits, but did you know it can be a great circuit breaker when things are getting a little heated at home? Sometimes grumpy moods and stress can benefit from burning some energy and getting your heart and those feel-good feelings pumping. Grab the kids, clear a space (or head outside) and give these easy moves a go.

for parents & young kids

Jump like a frog

Touch the sky and touch your toes

Wiggle your fingers

Shake and jiggle your arms and legs

Dance to your favourite songs

Stretch with a big yawn

Take slow deep breaths in and out

Ask yourself and the kids, what are the movements that you found:

- relaxing:
- tough:
- silly:
- fun:

Which ones would you like to do every day?

Made to move!

Family Scavenger Hunt

When it comes to exercise, getting started can be the hardest part! Sometimes it helps to just take notice of our bodies first, and the enjoyable sensations they can bring us.

Check off these activities as you do them. As you're doing them, take time to notice how your body feels. You might like to talk to the kids about how their body feels too:

for parents &
little kids

Scrunch leaves in your hands

Feel the sun on your cheek

Feel the grass under your feet

Run until you're puffed

Spin in a circle

Splash your face with water

Let dirt fall between your fingers

Make as many different shadow puppets as you can using your fingers

Make sounds with rocks

Talking about what exercises you want to try can help you find ways to motivate and support each other. Have a go at each talking about what interests you when it comes to your fitness and moving your body. Brainstorm below. Then as a family stick your thoughts somewhere like the fridge to see every day.

Ideas to get you going: Volleyball, running outdoors, skateboarding, rollerblading, outdoor cricket, swimming, surfing, bush-walking, yoga, rock climbing, walking with friends, a family bowling team... or make up your own!

for parents & older kids

these are my values

Thinking about what we value helps us make decisions every day that we are proud of.

Cut-out the values below and put them in order of importance to you. You can do this together with your family or household and chat about how you can help each other live true to your values.

Adventure

I look to do new things and the ways I can grow.

Bravery

I stand up for my friends, and the things I believe are right.

Joy

I look for the things I can be thankful for every day.

Cleverness

I like to be good at the things I do. I like to know how the world works.

Kindness

I believe everyone deserves kindness, and to know they belong.

Forgiveness

I know that everyone makes mistakes and deserves a chance to do better.

Creativity

I like to use my imagination and see things in new ways.

Patience

I like to give myself and others time. I prefer things are done well than fast.

Uniqueness

I like finding out what makes people special. I enjoy being with people who are different.

Reflection

I take time to reflect on my life, what I believe in, and what I want for the future.

our windows to the future

What will the people in your home be doing in the future? Will they be doing the things they are good at? Maybe they'll be doing the things that are true to their values! In the windows below, draw each person in your household in an imaginary future. This future could be this afternoon, tomorrow, next year or in ten years! Tell them what you imagine they'll be doing, and ask them if they think your predictions will come true.

If you need extra windows, draw some more on spare paper. If you have too many windows, you might like to include your friends, some pets or animals, or your favourite plants.

What are some very small steps you can take to work towards a happy future for yourself and your household? Think about these together, and then list them below:

ADULT COLOURING-IN

Colouring-in has lots of benefits for people of all ages. It's calming and gets your mind into focus. It's also a lot less pressure than drawing your own art.

Take time to note how you felt before and after completing this colour-in.
That way you'll know if it works for you!

Thinking through changes

Changes of all shapes and sizes can shake us up a bit.

So it's important to take time to reflect and think about what strengths and supports we have to cope with change. This resource has been made to help you and your kids do just that! Fill it out on your own or together. Keep a second copy and fill it out again in a few months time to see how things have changed.

What's a change you and the kids are going through? Write it down below together.

A large, white, rounded rectangular area intended for writing, set against an orange background. It is flanked by a red leaf on the left and a blue leaf on the right.

Changes are rarely black and white – only good or bad. Try to acknowledge the tricky stuff, the good stuff and everything in between that change has brought to your life.

Things that will be tough

Things that stay the same

Things that are exciting

Thinking through changes

Reflecting on all the changes you've been through in life can help you face the new ones! Write or draw some of the changes you and your kids have been through in the squares below. Underneath each one, list the things that helped you all feel safe during that change.

Ideas to get you going: First trip to the dentist. Starting day care or school. Moving towns. Making new friends. Saying hello or goodbye to a favourite pet. A new brother or sister.

What are the things that will help you and the kids during the change you're going through? It could be a favourite wise person. A walk in the park. Making extra time for a bubble bath. Or even a pet. Draw them in the circles below and keep them somewhere safe to look back on.

During this change we're going through, the things that will help us feel safe are:

Thinking through changes

During times of change it can be helpful to think about the skills you and the kids have to cope with change. Maybe you're organised? Or patient? Or really good at winging it? Write them down together below.

When things change, these are our skills and strengths that come in handy:

We keep a sense of humour

Add some of your own:

We have patience

We face our fears

We're good at asking for help

We learn from mistakes

If you're having trouble juggling life changes there are heaps of people who can help. Chatting to friends or other parents is a good place to start. Or try oneplace.org.au to find support services across QLD.
